Borrow a bag?

Don't you wish you had that perfect Gucci bag to go with your drop-dead outfit? One Internet retailer lets you live the dream. BagBorrowSteal.com is like a Netflix for accessories: Membership allows you to borrow from more than 100 designers like Chanel, Prada, and Gucci. Keep the bag for a minimum of a week or as long as you like (the longer you have it, the more it costs). Members pay a monthly fee ($5 to $10), a borrowing fee (from $6 and up), and a $9.95 round-trip shipping charge. The service can be pricey, but trends change so quickly that it could just be worth the investment.

A hot Web site lets you rent from among 3,000 styles of handbags and jewelry.

Breast augmentation became the most popular cosmetic procedure for women in 2006.

Bras for new breasts

To help support the surgically endowed, Le Mystère No. 9, has introduced a new line of bras designed for women with implants. "After surgery, conventional bras don't fit," says Otto Placik, MD, a board-certified plastic surgeon in Chicago. "Augmented breasts have more projection, and regular bras can't accommodate the contours." Enter Le Mystère No. 9 bras ($76 to $84; at Nordstrom, Neiman Marcus, Bloomingdale's, and Saks Fifth Avenue stores nationwide), which are constructed with more-rounded underwire, deeper cups, and a wider connector between cups. The bras can also perk up breasts that haven't been surgically altered.

Better sun protection year-round

If you're smart about skin care, then you know sun protection isn't just for the beach—you need to take it seriously all year long. The big news this season: You can now get your hands on products with Mexoryl, the only broad-spectrum sunscreen that blocks short-wave UVA radiation, the rays that cause wrinkles and skin aging. (Until Mexoryl, sunscreens were only able to ward off long-wave UVA and UVB rays.) Mexoryl has been available outside the United States for the last 10 years. And now you don't need a passport to get it. Find it in products like L'Oréal Paris Revitalift UV With Mexoryl SX Daily Moisturizing Cream, Vichy Capital Soleil SPF 15 Sunscreen Cream for Face and Body With Mexoryl SX, and Lancôme UV Expert 20 With Mexoryl SX SPF 20.

Honoring women, dream by dream

A little support can go along way. That's the idea behind the Avon Hello Tomorrow Fund. Every week for one year, the initiative awards $5,000 to help an individual create a program or project in one of three areas: business development, community service, or awareness and outreach. The winners are selected by a panel of judges, including finance guru Suze Orman and designer Cynthia Rowley.
